Yeah, I know. The title of this article is strange but allow me to explain myself a bit.

My wife has more recently gotten into the habit of swimming two or three times a week and has wanted to find a way to track her swimming performance much akin to how my Fitbit tracks my steps and physical activity on the ground. At this stage, I am still researching options but I have discovered that such devices are called "swimming watches".

Anyway, I'll let you know how this research goes, what ends up being selected and the usual unboxing video to follow suit.

Stay tuned!
